

FOR PROFESSIONALS

DONOR CONCEPTION NETWORK

Making it Real

A specialist workshop for professionals working in the field of donor conception

Donor conception has lifelong implications for parents, children and donors. Our Making it Real workshop helps professionals explore these implications, drawing on the experiences of families and donor conceived adults to understand how needs change over time.

Build your understanding and confidence to support families throughout their donor conception journey.

> "Provided me with more in-depth knowledge and a different perspective on the long term implications for parents and, importantly, for donor conceived children."

Join us to explore:

- What makes donor conception different from other routes to parenthood?
- What support do families need before, during and after treatment?
- How are DNA testing and genetic connections changing the landscape?
- How can professionals help families make informed decisions for the future?

Why attend?

- Hear from parents and donor conceived adults about their experiences
- Understand the social and emotional implications of donor conception
- Consider the role of the donor, the donor's family and genetic siblings
- Explore the long-term needs of donor conception families
- Learn about DCN's resources and how they complement clinical information and counselling
- Share perspectives and network with other professionals working in the field
