

Blackness and assisted reproduction

CALL FOR RESEARCH PARTICIPANTS

Are you a black parent or parent-to-be who has used or plans to use any assisted reproductive technologies?

This includes IVF, IUI, surrogacy and so on

Are you a clinician or fertility worker who has worked with black clients?

The clients might be intended parents, egg donors, sperm donors or surrogates

Are you a black person who has donated your eggs or sperm?

Especially if you've donated in the last five years

You're invited to attend a 1-2 hour interview about your experiences.

Interview participants will receive £25 as a thank you for your time.

Contact: patricia.hamilton@york.ac.uk for more

My name is Dr Patricia Hamilton and I'm based in the Department of Sociology at the University of York (UK). I'm interested in Black families' experiences of reproduction and parenting.

UNIVERSITY of York